BUSINESS.COM FEATURES MARIANNE CURTIS IN, "EMPLOYMENT AND ANTI-DISCRIMINATION LAWS IN THE WORKPLACE"

April 13, 2021

Business.com

View Full Article

"Marianne Curtis, an employment litigation attorney and partner at Berger Singerman, said retaliation typically occurs between a boss and a subordinate, although it can occur between two colleagues."

"The retaliation can be done in very subtle ways, such as isolation or providing unfavorable work," said Curtis."Alternatively, the retaliation can be more overt through termination with unstated or generic reasons as the basis for termination."

Related Practices

Labor & Employment

Related Practice Teams

Dispute Resolution

Related Team Member(s)

Marianne Curtis

Topics

Labor & Employment

Anti-Discrimination Laws

Workplace Discrimination